The Insulator is a review of construction activity in the central states region.

As I look out our office window, snow covers the ground and still more is coming. It seems like this has been a common scene for us the last two months, and there is no hope of warmth or sun in the near future. I guess it’s a good thing we are in the insulation business and not selling ice cubes.

I just finished my registration for the upcoming NIA Annual Convention, April 2-5, in Indian Wells, California. Please take a look into the great opportunity to network with business associates, learn more about our industry, and take a break from the everyday grind back at the office. You have until March 7th to take advantage of their early bird discounts.

I would like to give special recognition to Bryan Pieh of Advanced Industrial Services to his past years of service on the CSIA board. Due to current job responsibilities, Bryan has resigned from the board. He will be greatly missed for his experience, professionalism, and hard work. We have elected Brad Viers with Advanced Industrial Services as his replacement, and I would like to wish Brad a warm welcome.

Don’t miss the upcoming CSIA seminar “How Wage and Hour Laws Affect Your Business” on March 19th by Steve Watring of Dunlevey, Mahan & Furry. Details can be found on page 13 of this publication.

Our association office is currently working on the details for the CSIA Spring Labor Conference at the Griffith Gate Resort in Lexington, KY, on April 22 and 23. Our board has decided to invite MCAO Member firms (Union Mechanical & Sheet Metal Shops in Ohio) to attend our networking events & related seminars. We hope this adds value to our membership by providing opportunities to develop relationships with your customers. Registration information can be found on pages 10 and 11 of this publication.

I hope your 2014 is off to a good start and look forward to seeing you in the near future.

This is a definitive victory for the mechanical insulation industry. This report will be a great step to show the American government and people throughout the country the impact that mechanical insulation can have not only on energy efficiency, but on cost savings throughout the governmental, commercial, and industrial sectors in the United States. It offers the opportunity to prove the tremendous benefits of insulation, with the potential to provide the hard evidence we need to bring the benefits of insulation to more audiences.

NIA would like to thank Representative Tim Bishop (D-NY), Representative Chris Gibson (R-NY), and Representative Michael Grimm (R-NY) for their efforts in introducing our amendment and getting it adopted in the version first acted upon by the U.S. House of Representatives. Their commitment and support of mechanical insulation has been paramount to our recent efforts and we look forward to continuing to work with them and their colleagues to ensure that mechanical insulation continues to receive the attention it deserves.

The NIA Foundation for Education, Training, and Industry Advancement, who worked alongside legislators to pass this legislation, promotes the benefits of insulation to outside audiences. For more information about our Foundation, please contact NIA Vice President Kristin V. DiDomenico at kdidomenico@insulation.org.

Multi-Employer Pension Reform

CSIA is working in conjunction with MCAA and SMACNA on federal multi-employer pension reform. The initiative has been dealt some serious blows as a couple of large unions (non-building trades) have come out in opposition causing a pull back from the Democrats on the bi-partisan group working on the issue. We have this new update from Mike Ledbetter of Ledbetter Parisi and Sollars on the matter:

- The expectation is that piece of legislation sponsored by Senator Harkin will be released soon. The bill is expected to have only a negligible impact on multiemployer plans.

- A multiemployer plan-focused bill is “coming but not imminent.” Republicans are working on it in the House. The hope is to see language by the end of February but there is no clear timeframe as of yet.

- There was a fair amount of discussion regarding developments with the PBGC. First, the PBGC is looking for greater partition authority, but this would be of little use to construction industry plans. There is also discussion of assigning retirement representatives to troubled plans (similar to a liaison/advocate) but those representatives would not have a vote and would defer to Trustees’ judgment. Finally, the PBGC is looking for a substantial premium increase, to the tune of 15-fold or more. NCCMP does not support this and the speaker indicated that a one-step solution to the PBGC funding problem is very unlikely to work and is not considered to be prudent or reasonable.

- NCCMP representatives met with Senator Harkin (D-IA) to discuss the funding problems facing multi-employer plans and the PBGC. They also discussed the proposals in the “Solutions Not Bailouts Report.” The meeting was significant because Senator Harkin is the Chair of the Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee in the Senate. Senator Harkin indicated he would meet with his counterpart in the House and discuss the hearings that have already taken place. The NCCMP representatives reminded those on the call that the Pension Protection Act was passed only after Senator Kennedy and Representative Boehner held similar meetings. A follow up meeting with Senator Harkin will include the General Presidents of several labor organizations.

- While the AARP is unlikely to ever support cuts to accrued benefits, they are apparently willing to talk with the NCCMP and others about portions of the Solutions Not Bailouts report that provide assistance to troubled plans.

- The House Education and Workforce Committee is still working on a funding reform bill, but it is proving a larger challenge that envisioned. They hope to have a “discussion draft” ready by the end of February.

- The funding challenges facing the PBGC was a topic of conversation. In order to prevent insolvency of the multiemployer program, the PBGC is discussing dramatic premium increases that would break out to roughly $.35 per work hour for the average plan. A waiver program would be created for plans that could not pay the increased premiums, but healthy plans could end up paying more to help subsidize those that are struggling. The speakers are very skeptical of this idea.

The number of claims against employers over alleged wage and hour violations has skyrocketed in the past several years. These claims are particularly dangerous because employees can sue as a group, and the employer can be held liable for not only back wages, but also attorney’s fees and double or even triple damages. The government is becoming more aggressive in enforcement, and many attorneys are anxious to sue over wage hour violations. The laws are more complex than you might believe. Attorney Steve Watring, a partner at Dunlevey, Mahan & Furry, will share important tips with you to help keep your company out of wage-hour trouble.

Steve will be addressing Federal Law but he will be prepared to answer any questions concerning State Law in Ohio, West Virginia, Indiana and Kentucky.

AFFORDABLE CARE ACT
UPDATE FOR EMPLOYERS

Delay of Employer Penalty - For Some…
Employer Penalty Postponed for Smaller Employers

On February 10, 2014, the employer mandate was once again delayed, at least for some employers, with the issuance of new guidance.

Pursuant to the newly released guidance, the employer responsibility provision will generally apply to larger companies with 100 or more full-time employees as scheduled in 2015.

The big change, however, is that for companies with at least 50 but less than 100 full-time employees, the employer responsibility provision will not apply until 2016. Certification is required for companies operating at the “at least 50 but not more than 100 full-time employees” level to take advantage of the delay.

Another notable change is that, under the new guidance, to avoid the penalty for failing to offer coverage, employers need only offer coverage to 70% of their full-time employees in 2015. Recall that the original rules required that coverage be provided to 95% of full-time employees. The 95% level will be reinstated for 2016 and beyond.

Perhaps most importantly, the multiemployer transition rule apparently applies indefinitely under the new guidance. Under the multiemployer transition rule, employers will not be subject to the employer penalty for failing to provide health coverage so long as:

(1) The employer is required to make contributions for some or all of its employees under a CBA or appropriate related participation agreement (italicized portion is new);

(2) The required contributions go to a multi-employer plan that offers coverage to those who meets its eligibility conditions;

(3) The multiemployer plan has coverage that is affordable and meets minimum value; and

(4) The multiemployer plan offers coverage to its eligible employees’ dependents.

Understandably, most employers were pleased to learn about the February 10th guidance!

Exchange Notices

With all of the excitement of the employer mandate delay, keep in mind that there is still an ongoing obligation to issue a Marketplace Exchange Notice to all new employees within the first 14 days of hire. This includes even those who previously received the notice from another employer in 2014.

The Central States Insulation Association is pleased to provide its members with a complimentary update on recent developments with the Affordable Care Act. The article provides general information regarding the Act with an emphasis on impact on employers.

To date, changes to the Act and its implementing guidance have been dynamic. As a result, regular review of requirements and developments is important.
